Northern Lights shines for 25 years

VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

Just a few months over 25 years have passed since Lesley Keith sent a bouquet of balloons soaring skyward from the balcony of Jasper Park Lodge on a sunny April afternoon to officially mark the launch of the Northern Lights Library System.

Northern Lights celebrated a quarter century of growth and progress this past week at their annual conference at their Elk Point headquarters. The system's first director, Pat McNamee, was both one of the conference session presenters and one of the special guests recognized by NLLS Board chair Arnold Hanson as he praised "the vision of the people who worked at this 25 years ago. You are the ones who made the system what it is today. Your dedication was wonderful," he concluded, calling for a champagne toast to Northern Lights, as commemorative souvenir glasses were lifted high and clinked in celebration.

Cold Lake – Bonnyville MLA Scott Cyr also had praise for those with the forethought to establish the system. "Because of it, my constituents are able to receive the best library service around. Without it, I'm convinced we wouldn't have libraries of this caliber. In 1990, it was established, and 25 years later, people are working together toward a common goal. We need to honour and praise what has been accomplished here."

More accolades came from Elk Point Mayor Parrish Tung, who congratulated the system for 25 years of service to the member communities and thanked the staff, past and present, for "a wonderful service."

More exemplary service is slated for the future, thanks to two substantial donations received at the celebration. Cenovus Energy representatives were unable to be present that evening, but sent along a $3,500 sponsorship for the Winter Reading Program. Their letter of congratulations on the anniversary noted that this is the fourth year for the company to support the program, which is part of their commitment to making communities better by encouraging learning, safety and wellbeing and providing initiatives for literacy. "We hope this will have a positive effect on your community."

Jennifer Downs and Emma MacIsaac delivered a huge cheque for $20,000 from Enbridge, along with congratulations on 25 years. "We are happy to be your neighbours," Downs said, adding that the donation, slated for an upgrade of the system's server, "is a good way to support so many communities" through the enhancement of library service in each of them. Enbridge pipelines cross the Northern Lights service area near a number of member libraries, she said, and "educational enrichment is one of our key objectives."

Power for new subdivision in the planning stage

VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

With work getting underway on Phase 2A - 1 of Elk Point's Centennial Subdivision, town council approved the application to ATCO Electric for design and cost proposal for electrical services in that area.

Council agreed that there are still decisions to be made before a design could be approved, regarding whether services will come from the street or lane, with some advantages to each.

Tentative plans for further subdivision of one lot and for roads in both residential and industrial areas are currently on hold at this time.

An error on a previously registered lot plan is to be adjusted. It has been determined that a portion of the lot the town is selling to the RCMP for their new detachment is actually located on the road allowance, so the property must be re-surveyed and subdivided, the property line moved and the parcel re-registered.

Tax update

Town council received an update on property taxes received to date, with approximately 87 per cent of the total tax levy in and a total of $309,246.93 yet to come in, with 87 per cent of that sum owing for current taxes. An additional penalty will be added to that amount on Jan. 1, 2016 if the taxes remain unpaid.

Cemetery bylaw amended

An amendment to Elk Point's Cemetery Bylaw that will allow a maximum of two monuments to be placed on a single grave was given all three readings at the Sept. 14 meeting.

Muscular Dystrophy Awareness Month

Deputy Mayor Dwayne Yaremkevich has proclaimed September as Muscular Dystrophy Awareness Month in Elk Point.

The purpose of the month is to increase public knowledge about neuromuscular disorders and the impact on families living with these disorders and the communities in which they live, as well as to educate the public about Muscular Dystrophy Canada and the services it provides.

Town to partner

The Town of Elk Point has agreed to partner with the Town of St. Paul, the County of St. Paul and the Village of Horseshoe Bay to apply for an Alberta Community Partnership Grant to acquire new radio equipment and the necessary training for the Alberta Fire Responders Radio Communication System as part of the Region of St. Paul Emergency Management Agency.

With the new system slated to go live in June 2016, council agreed that this is a good direction to take at this time.

Postmistress retires

Thursday was the final day on the job for Coral Tremblay, above centre, with co-workers Tina Campbell, Donna Yaremkevich, Brenda Anderson and Barb Chard. Yaremkevich will take over the position from Tremblay, who has worked for Canada Post for the past 34 years, and has been Elk Point's postmistress since December 1996. A number of former co-workers and customers, including Myrna Fedorus, Bernie Sherwin and Orest Fedorus, shown below, stopped by to wish her well and share her retirement cake, which was decorated to resemble an envelope addressed to her. Tremblay's plans for her retirement include taking time to enjoy some horseback riding and trying out a new sport, kayaking.

Health committee adds wellness to its mandate

VICKI BROOKER

Review Staff

Far from becoming a thing of the past, Elk Point's Interagency Health Committee has added 'Wellness' to its name and its purpose, and is forging ahead with new representatives and new enthusiasm as a new season of monthly meetings gets underway.

The future of the committee had been in question, since it was originally set up by Elk Point FCSS, a body now replaced by the joint County of St. Paul and Elk Point FCSS, which has a streamlined mandate that does not include this type of committee involvement.

"Are we going to go ahead on our own?" was the question chairperson Margaret Modin asked of the group after a round of updates from the various agencies and groups involved in the committee, with the answer a resounding "Yes." The general consensus was that it is very important to keep the committee going.

Because its purpose is to serve as a forum where representatives of agencies and groups can share needs and concerns, "this group is fundamental,"

Town Coun. Lorne Young said, given its information sharing potential and the range of people for advocacy.

"It's important to maintain the diversity of the group, and to share information," Diana Anderson added.

With FCSS no longer able to be involved, the town has agreed to take and distribute meeting minutes. Modin said she will stay on as chair for the present time, and a vice chair will be selected at the next meeting on Oct. 20.

Updates included information from Christal Brodziak that flu clinics will be held Oct. 20 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Oct. 22 and 27 from 2 p.m. to 7 p.m., and she is looking for volunteers to greet the public and to help to fill out forms. In light of the whooping cough outbreak, she urges all adults to get their booster shots for that and tetanus. Call the Health Unit at 780-724-3532 to make an appointment or drop in between 9 a.m. and 11:30 a.m. on Fridays. A car seat clinic will be held Sept. 29 from noon to 5 p.m. in the library parking lot.

Tracy Yaremko of the Brain Injury Network reported lots of new referrals and said that a new series of webinars is available.

Loris Kozina reported that Heritage Lodge is full and that other facilities are at or near capacity.

Affordable seniors' housing is the big concern for Margaret Modin, who said the town must get involved and find a builder interested in such a project. At least 20 residents would be needed to make a project viable, she has learned, as well as that the town and county are heavily involved in funding the current seniors' accommodation.

Diana Anderson thanked all that were involved in Grandparents' Day, and presented a cheque to Kozina for the Handi Van from the proceeds. The planning committee appreciated the support from the town, county and FCSS that made the event possible. Anderson and Theresa McNamara came to the meeting from another with the Alberta Council on Aging, where they were helping to finalize a position paper on seniors and health issues in northeast Alberta to be presented to the Minister of Health and Seniors, Sarah Hoffman. The paper includes recommendations from a rural perspective, Anderson said.

Iron Horse Ultra 100

Council approved a recommendation from the Public Works meeting to approve the Iron Horse Ultra 100 event on Oct. 3 and 4 and to give the event's organizers permission to use the town's land for those dates.

Water meters

With 40 water meters requiring replacement and none on hand at Public Works, council agreed to spend the balance of the 2014 MSI Operating Grant to purchase a supply of electronically read water meters at a cost of $350 each

Safety concerns

Council expressed concern for the safety of those who operate motorized scooters and in some cases, golf carts, on the street, and it was noted that these modes of transportation are neither licensed nor insured for street traffic. Those who must use this mode of travel due to mobility issues are urged to travel on the sidewalks instead of on streets.

Community Advisory Policing Committee back at work

VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

Elk Point Community Advisory Policing Committee is back to work for another season, meeting Sept. 9 for the first time since May.

Sherry Bower-Gagne and F. G. Miller High School students Megan Phillips and Kira Brunner reported on the many activities that wound up the school year. The new school year got underway with a sports fundraiser, with much more fun in store in coming months.

Orest Sereda outlined the new procedure now in place for those applying for membership in the Greater Lakeland Rural Crime Watch. He was pleased to report that the organization's updated bylaws have finally been approved, and that Saddle Lake is interested in forming a Rural Crime Watch group.

Pastor Jim MacLellan commended the RCMP on their enforcement regarding truck traffic, noting that there were "nowhere near as many problems as we had last year."

CAO Ken Gwozdz and Coun. Dwayne Yaremkevich reported on the town's activities. One capital project, Phase 2A of the Centennial Subdivision, is just getting underway with some trees being removed. Council has been working on strategic planning and has finished their financial restructuring. They are looking at the possibility of partnering with another community in bringing in a community peace officer. There have been a number of complaints regarding thefts during the summer.

Oilpatch activity is "down 40 to 45 per cent," according to Brant Evans, "and it's probably not coming back up anytime soon. Usually we see a lot of thefts in the field when this happens, and the companies have been taking measures to avoid that." The majority of thefts are of fuel, up to $150,000 worth, he added. "It's a big thing, every company has its on program on what to do with PIN numbers" to cut down on misuse of fuel cards. Evans commented on the recent crackdown on trucks by the Department of Transportation who are "really pushing on the regulations" regarding transportation of dangerous goods. He noted that the oil companies whose product is being transported are responsible as well as the service companies, and that the crackdown "definitely helps when there are rollovers," with less product leaking out of trucks.

County Coun. Dwight Dach said that road construction and graveling has been underway and that the county is "going to calcium for dust control" rather than oiling. He also reported that Terry Shanksowsky is the new face of FCSS in Elk Point and that 262 people had attended Information Night.

RCMP Cst. Anthony Unger reported that two new members have arrived at the detachment, which is "still ahead of last year in cases," especially thefts and break-and-enters. He suggested rural residents set up hunting cameras in inconspicuous spots to catch perpetrators in action, and said this helped to find the culprits in a recent incident. Lindbergh has set up a Crime Watch group and he will do some training with them, similar to what is done for Citizens On Patrol. Elk Point still hopes to set up a new COPS group but needs about 20 members to make it a success. The Department of Transportation, peace officers and check stops have been keeping traffic under control. The detachment's biggest concern at this time is increased gang activity, and Unger said increased drug activity, break and enters and theft go hand in hand. Ashley McQueen reported that Victim Services has double the files of this time last year, and urged everyone to lock their cars and houses to deter thieves. She has participated in community events and is recruiting volunteers, with three currently going through the orientation, and five more submitting applications.

The Seniors' Recreation Centre is "back in full swing" for fall, Margaret Modin reported, with coffee, cards and board games in the morning and rentals coming in. The main concern for that age group is phone calls from people with "weird stories," she said. "I tell them to just hang up."

A heartfelt thank you to all who donated to the Heart & Stroke Campaign on Sept 10 in my name. This is an amazing cause, and I want to sincerely thank you for helping me obtain the goal of $3095.

Major milestone

It's always good to share a success story, and the celebration of 25 years of service by the Northern Lights Library System is certainly one of those.

Back in 1990 when the system was launched, no one was sure how well it would be received, how many municipalities could be convinced to join, and really, how it would all come together. But, the team of visionaries were not swayed by the numerous "What ifs" and carried on until the system became a vital part of the region.

Prior to the coming of the system, libraries across northeast Alberta were on their own. Patrons could access only the books and materials that were in the libraries where they were cardholders. Some people went to the lengths of joining several libraries to access the materials they needed, while others used the books-by-mail service for that purpose.

Boards and staff of those libraries may have seen each other at the Jasper Conference, but had little or no interaction in between those annual events.

The system changed all that. Libraries across the region are all one big, happy family, and if you want a book from another library in this or one of Alberta's other systems, you can order it and it will be here in a matter of days. Boards and staff share resources and information on a regular basis, and have benefitted tremendously from this vision that became a reality.

RECREATION CORNER

First bus trip a huge success

JENA COLBOURNE
Recreation Coordinator

Our community bus trip to Sherwood Park for Creative Stitches & Crafting Alive! was a HUGE success. When I started the position of Rec Coordinator for Elk Point, Dwayne Vogel gave me a call. He said he had purchased a bus with the intent of starting community bus trips. Being a businessman himself, Prairie Tech, it was never his intention to take business away from our community, his idea was to make it easier on the residents to enjoy activities and events that are not available in town.

He told me how much he loved Elk Point and he believes that the bus can serve as an incentive to people moving to town or those wondering if they should stay. The bus will allow people to take part in activities and events, at a lower cost without the hassle of driving, parking, etc.

I loved the idea and on September 12th, we took our first trip since I took over as Rec Coordinator. The ladies on the bus all reported the trip was comfortable, relaxing, and fun. The driver, Lawrence Zarowny, made sure all the ladies had fun and even made a stop at Starbucks so they could get their coffee fix before heading into the crafting expo.

Most of the ladies knew each other, but those who didn't make fast friends with the group and I imagine they'll be hanging out in the future.

Some ideas for future trips include Christmas exhibitions in either Lloydminster, Edmonton or the Enjoy Centre in St. Albert, as well as bi-monthly trips to the swimming pool in St. Paul and possibly a community trip to Jubilation.

Please let me know what you're interested in, shoot me an email at recreation@elkpoint.ca

WAY BACK WHEN...

Picket line, Read-in challenge, Terry Fox Runs

HERE'S THE NEWS THAT MADE THE HEADLINES OF THE LAKELAND REVIEW AND ELK POINT REVIEW FOR THE WEEK OF SEPT. 22 IN...

1985

Northern Alberta Health Unit Nurses, on strike since April 1, picketed outside Elk Point Municipal Hospital, where the Elk Point health unit is located. The Lakeland Review's move to new premises in a new building along Highway 41 marked the end of an era, after seven years when the side-door place of business in the Credit Union building was "the paper office," having been home to Elk Point Reflections and Elk Point Sentinel before the establishment of the Lakeland Review.

1990

Elk Point Library Board was in serious need of three to five more members to fill vacancies on the board, after resignations and terms coming to an end took their toll. The library was also one of the sites for a Read-in Challenge where 176 F. G. Miller High School students and 54 library members logged a total of 3,450 minutes of reading on the chosen day, with the Elementary School unable to take part because their new library was still under construction.

1995

So much for retiring from public office - Mayor Ed Buck bowed to public pressure and reconsidered his vow to leave the mayor's chair, submitting his paperwork and being returned by acclamation. Graduate Renee Anderson won no less than nine awards at F. G. Miller High School Awards Night, including the Governor General's Academic Medal, St. Paul Regional School Division Academic Standings award and the Dr. K. C. Miller Best All-Around Student award.

2000

The Terry Fox Run was a small but mighty fundraiser, with only 26 participants, but their average collection of over $150 in pledges apiece was well ahead of the previous year's average of $103, with Peggy Maas once again the top fundraiser. MLA Paul Langevin announced that he would not seek re-election in the next provincial election, deciding to retire from politics after 23 years as a town councillor, mayor and MLA.

Local students held on to Terry Fox's dream, and at Heinsburg, one of the runners, Grade 2 student and cancer survivor Cassandra Glambeck had a personal stake in "raising money so they can find a cure for people like me." The community enjoyed one-stop information shopping as over 30 agencies and organizations displayed their programs, profiles and plans for the future to a capacity crowd at Information Night,

2010

Northern Lights Library System was 'Continuing to Evolve,' according to their theme for their conference that celebrated 20 years of service to member libraries. Incumbents Bernice Capjack and Dwayne Yaremkevich and newcomers Eugene Buck and Ron Fraess were elected to town council by acclamation, with council incumbent Dick Millar contesting incumbent Parrish Tung for the mayor's chair.

Hanson agreed, saying the donation "will go a long way" toward doing just that.

A third gift, this time a handsome congratulatory plaque, came from the Peace Library System, along with the message that "we celebrate with you in spirit."

Hanson and interim executive director Julie Walker also had a gift to deliver, calling forward "someone who's been here almost as long as the system, and who works diligently in the background, Margaret Young, who has been at Northern Lights for more than 20 years, to accept a basket of flowers.

The banquet was followed by an evening of excellent music by the King

Size Players, a group consisting of F. G. Miller High School art and music teacher Shane Larmand on drums, Elk Point students Savanna Lawrence on keyboard, Austin Stafford on guitar and Cameron Garnett-Bennett on bass and lead singer Cassidy Zahar of Vilna.

The two-day conference offered a total of 24 sessions on topics ranging from communications basics to serving patrons with print disabilities, along with three keynote speakers, including Daleen Pinder of Elk Point, a professionally trained life coach who spoke on "How to Love Your Busy Life," author and history buff Sue Carscallen of Calgary with her journey into her great-aunt's secretive and exotic past, and communication strategist Denise Miller with keys to knowing, understanding and accepting others.

OUTSTANDING NEIGHBOURS - Jennifer Downs and Emma MacIsaac of Enbridge presented a $20,000 donation to NLLS board chair Arnold Hanson and interim executive director Julie Walker to help expand the system's server capabilities to cope with increased needs of the still growing system.

All sorts of sports

BASSETT
Review Sports

Volleyball wasn't like this when I went to school. Sure, it was fun and I really enjoyed playing it in phys ed, but never have I see anything this competitive until I took in some of the senior boys and girls high school games this past weekend at the BCHS Roadrunner Classic tournament up at the C 2 Center in Bonnyville. The warm up drills before the matches were incredible to watch. Terrific coaching, I might add, by Jonathon Randall who coaches the girls' team and Madi Novakowski who coaches the boys' team. The girls lost three close third sets and just narrowly missed the play-off round. Overall, a very good weekend, they just came up a little short, which happens sometimes. The senior boys finished second in their pool after playing hard all weekend. They then played Pierceland in a crossover game and lost two close sets. It will be exciting to watch them grow and improve as the season progresses. Hockey season is just a few weeks away but the Pee wee Storm got a head start this past weekend. They were also up at the C 2 in Bonnyville on Sunday afternoon and hit the ice for a little skate. It was more of a time to get out on the ice together and see how they spent their summer, but the coaches did run them through a few skating and shooting drills.

Some of players are returning from last year and also some new faces out there this year. Ashley Hunter, who can skate really well, was one of them, as was my granddaughter, Heaven, who put on the big goalie pads for the very first time. Heaven has never played organized hockey before but does great in every other sport she has tried like track and field and competitive swimming and was the sports girl of the year at their awards day last spring for her school. Very proud of you, girl!!!

Barring any major breakdowns, our ice should be ready in about two weeks, about the same time the Blue Jays should be starting the playoffs. The Red Sox gave them a little trouble this past weekend but the pitching and hitting is still looking really good, it was the fielding this past weekend that beat them, the Jays making some errors on what should

Name: Rebecca
Age: 48
Rebecca is a beautiful, successful woman looking for love. She is a Marketing Manager, owns her own home, and is debt free. Rebecca is a divorced mother of one, her daughter, age 20, has recently moved out, leaving Rebecca with an empty nest. She has been divorced for about 5 years, and has been very focused on being a great, attentive mother, and having a successful career. Balancing her job as a single mother, and her career, left her with little time for herself, and even less for dating. With her daughters recent move, she has been given much more free time to enjoy herself and her life, and time to focus on finding a successful relationship. Rebecca enjoys going out for dinner, a day at the spa, yoga, traveling, boating, candle-lit dinners and great conversations. She has a great, fulfilling and joyous life, and while she does not feel as though she needs someone else to complete it, she wants someone to enjoy that with.

SPERD hosts 6th Annual Pow Wow

VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

St. Paul Education Regional Division No. 1 presented their Sixth Annual Traditional School Pow Wow on Friday at the beautiful Frog Lake First Nations Pow Wow arbor, with schools from across the division on hand to thrill at the beat of the drums, the impressive skills and ornate costumes of the dancers.

Master of ceremonies Melvin Abraham welcomed the visitors before a long line of dignitaries, led by Eagle Staff bearers from participating schools, took part in the Grand Entry. Following an opening prayer by elder Moise Paul and introductions of the guests, Frog Lake Chief Clifford Stanley and Regional Chief Craig Mackinaw gave their opening remarks.

SPERD trustee Heather Starosielski told the crowd that the Pow Wow "celebrates our First Nations, strengthens our relationships and builds new ones."

An Intertribal dance began the program, followed by Girls and Boys Traditional and Fancy dances, a princess pageant and the very special treat of hoop dances performed by two students, one of them only seven years old but already very proficient in the ancient tradition.

The day concluded with closing comments from Glenda Bristow and Clifford Cardinal and a round dance to which all the visitors were invited to join in.

GRAND ENTRY - Eagle Staff bearers from participating schools led a long line of dignitaries which included Regional Chief Craig Mackinaw and other First Nations leaders and elders, school board members and staff, educators and the dancers who would later compete in the day's program.

Mammography service to visit

ELK POINT — Women ages 50-74 — the group most at risk of developing breast cancer — will have local access to mammography services when the Alberta Health Services Screen Test program arrives in the community this month and next month.

A mobile mammography trailer will be stationed at the Fishing Lake Communiplex, Sept. 30 and Oct. 1 and at the Elk Point Healthcare Centre, Oct. 2 to 6. Residents can book an appointment or learn more about the program by calling 1-800-667-0604.

Screen Test is improving access to cancer screening for hundreds of women in northern Alberta communities where mammography is not readily available.

A mammogram is an X-ray of the breast and has proven to be the most effective way to detect breast cancer. Early detection allows for a greater number of options for treatment and a better chance of survival.

Visit www.screeningforlife.ca/screentest for a complete listing of Screen Test mobile sites.

IN MEMORIAM

In Memory of
Violet E. McFadyen
April 25, 1916
September 28, 2011

Memories of the four long years since you were called away
Along with the precious memories of all the cherished years we had with you
Are ever present in our minds and will guide us as we move forward with our lives.
We will always remember you as our dear, loving, and talented mother, mother-in-law, Grandma, Great Grandma, Auntie, friend, neighbour, volunteer and so much more.
Our family chain has been so broken in the past eight years since you, Barrie, and Malcolm have gone
But, as you always told us, we must go forward and we will.
Even though you are not with us, your warm and caring presence is always with us.
You will not be forgotten and memories of your gentle voice, your beautiful smile, Your kind, loving and supportive ways will help to keep us strong and wise.
What we would give to all be together with you again, to chat awhile, to listen while you play your piano, to watch as you crochet beautiful doilies and quilt with such perfect stitching,
To bring you bouquets of flowers with lots of sweet peas and pink roses.
We know that cannot be but we want you to know that our love, appreciation and respect for you
Will be forever and ever in our hearts and minds.

Lovingly remembered and sadly missed,
Chris and Family
